Archaeology at the Farmhouse by Dr Carol Diaz-Granados

Did you know ... that what began as archaeological excavation activities around the Sutter-Meyer Farmhouse property over 12 years ago turned into the Sutter-Meyer Society? For four summers, volunteers excavated four 1-to-2-meter units to discover artifacts that would help us understand the people who lived on this site in the late 1800s (pictures of some items discovered accompany this article). Materials found at the site were classified as glass bottles and fragments, ceramic dishware and fragments, metal items, buttons and bones (there were lots of bones from contemporary meat processing activities – mostly pork).

All the materials help to “tell the story” of the past. However, some of the more interesting items found include historic marbles, a small brass candlestick, a toothbrush handle from Paris(!), the entire bottom of a large ceramic vegetable bowl, a porcelain doorknob, and both bone and mother-of-pearl buttons. The materials excavated are not “valuable” from a monetary standpoint, but rather from an informational one!

The glass bottles recovered are mostly from tonics and condiments, plus some fragments from liquor bottles. Some of the items found dating to more recent times included a small toy metal car and the remnants from someone working on a car or truck.

Be sure to check out the display case in our kitchen museum when you come to visit the Farmhouse.

Sutter-Meyer Society Annual Meeting

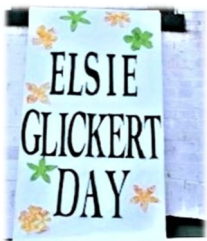

On May 2, the Sutter-Meyer Society held our annual meeting, during which we approved our new officers and board of directors (see list at right).

Andy Wool, a 1987 University City High School graduate, gave an interesting talk on the history of the spotlight on top of University City city hall. Andy currently is working on a project to restore the spotlight and create a documentary showing the spotlight in operation and describing its history.

Celebrating Elsie Glickert

On April 3, we held a special open house to honor the memory of our good friend (and board member) Elsie Glickert. She was a founding member of the Sutter-Meyer Society and played a leading role at every stage of our work. Thanks to all who helped us celebrate Elsie’s extraordinary life!
